

Do You Have These Post Tubal Ligation Syndrome Symptoms?

Have you had a tubal ligation? Have you had weird things happening to your body? And no matter how many trips you make to the doctor nor how many tests she runs, you still don't have a diagnosis...or one that makes any real sense. If so, then it's possible that you are suffering from the symptoms of post tubal ligation syndrome. Others call it post tubal syndrome.

Regardless of whether or not the medical community as a whole believes in PMS or not, you still are having problems. No doubt you have been researching on the web and learned about some of the different symptoms associated with this syndrome. Below you will find a few first hand accounts of the symptoms some suffering women have gone through probably just like you.

Among the stories I share here is the one of Shannon's symptoms. She had a loss of libido, anxiety attacks, mood swings, weight gain, depression and acne. Her periods had turned awful. While they were only 7 days long, she was unable to leave her home for the first two days due to extremely heavy flow. Her words were that she felt on "the verge of hemorrhaging" with very large clots. She also had terrible PMS.

Tracy complains of being fatigued a lot and having no interest in sex. She couldn't sleep and just stayed tired all the time. Her periods went crazy. What had once been like clockwork became longer, much more intense with heavy bleeding and clotting, then trail off only to start again a day later. She had bad cramps as well. Her other symptoms included occasional dizziness, a memory that got worse, feeling like she was in a fog all the time, headaches, hair breaking and fingernails cracking, tingling in her extremities and acne.

The same general symptoms seem to be shared by many of the women. Rebecca became extremely angry and had emotional outbursts. She also suffered from terrible cramping, headaches and a loss of libido. These last two plus the mood swings seem to show up in many of the stories of post tubal ligation syndrome women.

Christie like so many women who suffer from this after effect of tubal ligation had mood swings with crying spells and uncontrollable fits of rage. She thinks this was the biggest problem she had due to her religion besides being bedridden while she suffered through her periods. They were eight days long and very painful. Besides these, she also suffered with hair loss and loss of libido. Her hair loss was bad enough she had to begin to style her hair differently to try to hide it. She had depression such that her doctor put her on an antidepressant. Of course, her doctor just told her she was getting older when she sought help.

If you find while reading this article that these stories seem to sound just like what you are going through, then the first thing you may want to do is seek out some support. A search on the web will help you find a forum where others who suffer as you do congregate to provide that virtual shoulder to cry on. Further they may just help you find the information you need to find out what you can actually do for yourself to remedy, as much as possible, what you are going through with post tubal ligation syndrome.
