The Four Critical Questions of Marketing. These are the real questions that need to be answered in MLM. As exciting as the MLM Guerilla Virus is, unless you can see through the fancy action words, you are no closer to putting groceries on the table.

That is why it is so important to find a business leads system out there that will give it to you straight. A business opportunity that will level with you, and give you real answers to the Four Critical Questions of MLM. A close look at these questions will help you know if a system is good for you.

How is the money made? Before you even know how much you can make, it is important to know where the money comes from. Product sales? Recruiting bonuses? Commissions? Fewer large payouts? Many smaller deposits? This is the most important thing for you to find out.

How much can be made? Like Question #1, this is extremely important, and it can be difficult to determine. Sales pitches will always give you the most optimistic results imaginable, so its up to you to sift through the sales shout and consider what is being promised and how they are promising it. Hopefully then you'll have a better idea what you can make from this.

How reliable is it really? Anyone can promise you a million dollars overnight. It may even be technically possible, if all the universe aligns at the exact moment you click to sign up, but its not likely. That's why you must ask this question. This can be a little easier to answer, if you pay attention. Just listen and ask yourself if its realistic. But remember that no matter what, they will tell you that it is.

What do I have to do to become involved? This can sometimes be a tricky one too. Expect to be strung along, clicking here and there to access this and that, without much of a solid answer. More of this trick stuff is a bad thing. The sooner you can find out, the more sure you can be that they aren't asking for a firstborn. As soon as you know the answer to these four questions, you will be able to give it some thought and come up with the answer to the most important question of them all.
